HONGKONG, SEPTEMBER 17TH, 1880. THE question of the water supply of this Colony is a large and important one, and before pronouncing any very decided opinion on the proper scheme to be adopted we should like to have further information. That a better supply of water is greatly needed has been concoded on all bands, but the Go-VERNOR objects to its being applied to flushing water-closets, and advocates the dry earth system for the Colony. Now without going into the merits of the two systems, about which a great deal could be said on either side, we would strongly urge that some steps should be taken without delay to improve the existing supply of water, which in winter, is lamentably inadequate to the wants of the population. The tanks are in the dry season "regularly besieged by excited crowds of native Parkes, H.B.M. The School of Hongkong has never deserved the high rate of expendi ure that has been squandered upon it. The system is defective altogether. With the exception of the present Headmaster and late Inspector of Schools, not one of the men engaged ought to be employed at all. To expect educated men from boys who have but sparely attended a course of only two or three years' education, is to look for the impossible. By way of a suggestion I would propose that if ever a higher education becomes a necessity for the sons of our rulers, it would no doubt be quite possible to make such arrange ments with the St. Paul's College people as would permit of its utilization to the end desired. Whilst, Lowever, throwing out these suggestions, and condemning a wasteful expenditure apon the fancies of a visionary, I by no means abandon my contention that aducation is a upas tree under whose noxious shade more villainy is hatched than was possible during an era when our forefithers as assingted and were in turn assassinated when our foremothers poisoned their husbands and were bowstrung by their lovers; when there was a general settlement of affairs without the intervention of judges, juries, Court houses, or "leading" Chineso. CHINESE CHIVALRY. TO THE BDITOR OF THE "DAILY PRESS." DEAR SIR .- I quite agree with your corre spandent A. B. C. when he ridicules the idea of a material collision between Europeans and Chi nese in the City Wall Museum. The latter are such arrant poltroous, that they refer to physical might only upon such occasions as there exists no doubt of the result being in their favour. The following instance: which occurred the evening before last just after dusk, offers a fair ilustration of the Chinese character as to manily conrage. Throe women were passing the Fir Brigade Station at the Cross Roads when some Chinese in the building indulged in certain reflections as to their pursuits in life so gross that the ladies in question retorted with such effect as to exasperate the Government servants to knock them down and beat them. This is a sample of Chinese courage. It would gratify me were the case brought up before Mr. Tonnochy -whose severe punishment lately of a wife, beater must gain for him the respect of all right-thinking man-but the unpleasantness of descing at tendance upon a Court is so great and the results

Hongkong, 16th September, 1830. THE CITY HATL MUSEUM TO THE EDITOR OF THE "DAILY PRESS."

SIR,-Your correspondent "A. B. C." clearly much of a logician, but it does not follow that his arguments are passearily sound; he is also adiplomatist, but his trick is old and simple and shelly seen through. He evidently thought that by coming in at the end with his heavy logiche could turn public opinion, but of course if his major premiss is false his argumentative structure tumbles. He begins by throwing out a son to his opponents, even tries to make them believe he is all on their side and then works round in favour of the other. I do not know what the prisoner was seen the same day by two of his (weighty argument of the Attorney-General be means. If I mistake not his only argument was that, on the ground of good faith, the City Hall Committee should make no distinction between Chinese and others. (When the learned gentleman has been here for ten years he will learn that he is only then beginning to find out how the Chinese ought to be treated and will be ashamed of his having expressed his jacket. He was observed, however, by the an opinion so soon after his arrival on a subject which he did not understand). His argument fells to the ground, because when the $1,200 grant was made the only stipulation was that spective of nationality. That agreement has been strictly carried out; the Chinese as well as others have now and have always had free admission. No production of documents, no arguments, however plausible, will alter the fact. The deed on which the ground is held, does not, as Mr. Keswick pointed out, make any reference to a museum or any stipulation which has in any way: been broken. When the Governor stated to the contrary he stated what is not true. As for the Committee resting "their case" on any special grounds, they have nothing to rest, they have entered into no dispute, they say the Governor | yesterday morning. The subjoined telegrams bas no right to interfere with what is not a Government institution. If the Governor thinks he has a case it is for him to prove it. Let him take it into a court of law, where all the doonment can be legally interpreted. As for its not being now open to them to advance reasons other than that already given for their action, I must say that I think it would be very arbitrary to deny them that right; but they do not require they are not called upon to give any reason be done without needless delay. The city Duke the United Service Greeke says: IsOkosiri making six for the two lengths; in former years possessed by the youthful subjects of the Chinese whatever; it is a matter with which no one but the Committee has anything to do unless it can be shown that some agreement has been infringed Your correspondent fulls, I think, into a pit, when he refers to the Chinese not being British subjects. JAPANESE AT VIENNA

The Vienna correspondent of the London or China Express says: General Ida Yudzuru. Euvoy. Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary of the Japanese Government at the Austrian Court, whose appointment I reported in June last, has arrived and assumed the management of the affairs of the Japanese Legation, which was established in 878. The general was accompanied by his wife and children, two little girls aged seven and four. Neither the Minister nor his wife speak any European language. The children are to brought up here, and learn the language of the country; they are also to acquire some accomplishments. The new representative of Japan has had a very brilliant military career. Although comparatively young he took a prominent part in the war by which the grandeur and sovereignty of the Chotes (folsely styled Mikades, this word meaning the Sublime Power) were restored. In the last contest against the rebals Ids Yudsurn again displayed remarkable energy and foresight, so as to justify his rapid elevation to the rank of a general. He spent some years in the Ministry for Foreign Affairs, and although he is reported: to have acquired during his short passage there much doubt the fact, considering his almost absolute ignorance of our languages. The two political attachés are Mr. Watanable Rankitti. who speaks German, and Mr. Okubo Gakendi. who is conversant with the French language. Neither of these gentlemen, who are about twenty. five years of age, had ever before been to Europe. Both served their apprenticeship as diplomatists in the Foreign Department at Tokio. For the first time we have here a Japanese military attache. Mr. S. Tzudee, a distinguished young officer, who received a thorough military education à l'Européinne at Berlin, and served in the Pussian army, after having gone through a regular course of study at the Academy. Among the Japanese guests now in Vienna the most prominent is Prince Zoosugava, a brother of the former Zaikun, who, but for the revolution and the subsequent restoration of the national dynasty, would now be the heir presumptive of the throne. It seems in the Far East political ideas and sentiments about "the right divine" widely differ from those which prevail with us in Europe. Far from feeling any hatred against the reigning dynasty, Prince Zocongava takes things very coolly, has his abode in Paris, like many other members of dethroned families; but, unlike some, he makes no opposition whatever to the established order of things, and entertains the best relations with the official representatives of the Mikado's Go-When he arrived in Vienna he immediately repaired to the Japanese Legation. Fancy Count de Chambord or Don Carlos leaving his card at the French Embassy or the Spanish

Legation, and wishing the Ambassador to introduce him at Court. Some time ago there was a good deal of agitation in Japan about the treaties of commerce with European Powers that are to be renewed within a year or so. Both journalists and officials have evinced a very great anxiety to put, as soon as possible, an end to a state of things which they consider to be highly detrimental to Japanese interests and offensive to their national lignity. All those sensational statements are used apropos of Custom questions and ad valorem duties. Even allowing for Japanese statesmanship having been led astray by the delusive doctrines of protectionism taught by American economists. I never could make out the excessive irritation entertained about this question in the country of the Rising Sun. Now I am happy to state that those exaggerated feelings have donsiderably quieted down, and have given place to more correct notions about customs any commercied logislation. Judging by what I understand from an anthorised source, and by the moderate language Japanese officials now use with reference to the treaties, I may safely affirm that serious difficulty; at any rate, the new diplomatists accredited at the different Courts will show a sufficient willingness and conciliatory views.

Armed police and detectives were placed at intervals along the street leading | try Thermometer..... 90.6 85.0 91.0 86.0 from the prison, to prevent any attempt at a resous. At six o'clock he was placed in a vehicle in charge of Inspector Baber and a number of troopers. The rehicle left the gaol and progeded at a smart pace through the streets to the high road leading towards Wungaratta. At 25 miles distance they got into the special train. Kelly walked lamely and looked wearied, but he spoke pheerfally and waved his handkerchief to people whom he recognised. As the special dashed 'along he expressed his opinion that he would be hanged, and he promised to hand somebody At Essendon station a large crowd assembled to see him. He laughed at their eagerness to catch a glimpse of him, and called them, sarcastically, a d- let of fools. He was taken out at Newmarket, placed in a close vehicle, and driven to the gaol.
